

MOKENA HOME COMING CANCELLED

Caroline Ebert of Mokena Passes Away

Mrs. Caroline Ebert, aged 58 years of Mokena, and a life long resident of Will County, died Tuesday afternoon at Silver Cross hospital in Joliet following an illness of several months.

She was born Jan. 28, 1885 at Frankfort and later moved to a farm near Mokena where she spent her entire life. Her husband Lewis, who was a farmer, died in 1936 and one son Walter preceded her in death in 1930.

Those surviving are: one daughter Irene, of Mokena, 6 sons Pfc Edmund Ebert with the US Army in North Africa, Corp. Chester Ebert with the US army at Panama, Harold, Carl, Lewis and Roy all of Mokena also the following brothers and sisters: Christ and Otto Hohenstein of New Lenox, Dan of Joliet, Henry, Chicago, Peter, Minnesota, Chas. of Melrose Park and Conrad of California. Mrs. Harry Kohlhaugen of New Lenox, Mrs. Nicholas Gauthier of Mokena.

Funeral services will be held from the late home near Mokena Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to St. Peter's Evang. church at Frankfort at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the Pleasant Hill cemetery at Frankfort.

CAN SECURE ENTRY BLANKS FOR NATIONAL YOUTH SAFETY CONTEST

Mr. Glenn Sproat of New Lenox Mut. Co. Fire Insurance Company can secure for local school children entry blanks for the 1943 National Youth Safety Contest. He is a member of the Illinois Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, which is sponsoring the contest in this state.

Boys and girls can enter the contest who are between the ages of 14 to 21 inclusive or in school grades 7 to 12 inclusive, he said. Those who enter will each inspect two sets of farm buildings and write a short article on fire prevention.

Various cash prizes will be awarded in Illinois and first place winners in the state will also be considered for the National cash prizes.

The purpose of the contest is to reduce loss of life and property in farm fires. This is a patriotic duty in war time, especially when man power and foodstuffs must be conserved.

Last year prize winners in Illinois were Miss Ruth Alice Wolfe, of St. Joseph, and Calvin Buttel of German Valley who was also runner up in the National Contest.

MOKENA MUSICAL FESTIVAL TO BE HELD MAY 4

Due to the spring vacation of the Mokena school and the absence of Miss Hennessey who is arranging the program, the Mokena PTA Music festival will be postponed from Tuesday, April 27 to May 4.

The dances sponsored by the PTA have been well received by the young people of Mokena, and will be resumed after Easter.

MOKENA RED CROSS RAISES TOTAL OF $527.57

The final returns for this area show a total of Five Hundred Twenty Seven Dollars and Fifty Seven Cents. ($527.57) This includes contributions which were turned in direct to the Chapter at Joliet by workers and also a check from the Public Service Co. for Seven Dollars and Fifty cents which Mr. Musser gave to Mrs. Semmler with the explanation that it represented contributions by employees of that company who reside in Mokena. This did not include contributions made thru salary deductions.

Thanks a Lot Everybody.

MAKE SHIPMENT OF USED SILK, RAYON, NYLON HOSE

This week Mrs. Heyden, Mokena, had charge of the collection of silk, rayon, nylon hose reports that she was able to make a shipment to the factory for reworking these into powder bags. The shipment totaled One Hundred and Five Pounds. That is an excellent record for the village.

Don't forget that next Tuesday at 7 pm there is to be an Air Raid Alert with all the officers of this council participating. There will be no black out and vehicular traffic will not be interfered in any way. However all citizens are requested to remain on their own premises and no dogs are to be at liberty. This is to be a state wide test of equipment and personnel.

RAYMOND McGUIRE MADE AN EAGLE SCOUT

Raymond McGuire of Mokena has been made an Eagle Scout of the Rainbow council of boy scouts with headquarters in Joliet.

Mokena Elects New Board Members

With two tickets in the field for village trustees, interest in the Mokena village election held Tuesday, brought out 230 votes.

Independent No. 1 ticket on which Wm. Semmler and Lloyd Warning sought re-election polled 9 straight votes while the candidates on Independent No. 2 ticket, Philip J. Hacker, Jr., John P. Marti and Carl Wolter polled 87 straight ballots. The balance of the ballots were badly scratched and quite a few ballots were spoiled and could not be counted. The total votes straight and split showed the following:

Independent No. 1 ticket, Wm. Semmler, 105; Lloyd Warning, 83. Independent No. 2 ticket, Philip J. Hacker, Jr. 189; John P. Marti, 117; Carl Wolters, 148.

Mr. Hacker was the top man leading his ticket. The newly elected trustees will be inducted into office for a 4 year term Tuesday evening, May 4th.

Place Rabies Ban In Bremen Township

The following statement by E. A. Piszczek, M. D. Health Officer of the Cook County Public Health unit of the Cook County Public Health unit has been sent to all health and police officers in Bremen and Worth townships relative to the Rabies quarantine which has been established in these townships:

To all Health and police officials in Bremen and Worth townships, Cook County, Illinois:

During the past several weeks, there have been reported an abnormal number of dogbites in your area. In the past sixty days, laboratory examinations of 31 heads of dogs who have bitten persons showed 18 to be positive for rabies. We have had reports from physicians, police officials, and citizens that an unusually large number of stray dogs are present in your area, especially along the Chicago Sanitary District Canal. Many suburban residents report that since meat rationing city people apparently come out and "dump" their dogs along the canal because they can no longer feed them properly.

The Illinois Department of Agriculture, effective as of April 19th, 1943, has placed a rabies quarantine on the townships of Bremen and Worth. I quote from their letter to me, "There are just two ways dogs can be handled in quarantine areas and they are as follows:

1. Confined within an enclosure from which escape is impossible, or
2. Restrained on a leash of chain or other indestructible material.

It is the duty of the sheriff, constable, and police officers, to see that this quarantine is enforced.

All dogs that do not comply with the quarantine regulations should be shot or destroyed, as the officers see fit. When a quarantine is established, we like to let the quarantine remain in force for 90 days after the last positive case in the area. Since all victims of human rabies die, I hope you will join in this effort to save human lives. Your efficient enforcement of this regulation will allow us to have the quarantine lifted at an early date.

E. A. Piszczek, M. D. Health Officer, Cook County Public Health Unit.

NEW LENOX STUDENTS ENJOY VISIT TO MUSEUM OF SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY

Monday, April 19th, one hundred and forty six members of the 4th through 8th grades at the New Lenox Elementary school made an all day trip to Chicago to visit the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson Park. The field trip which was arranged by Mr. Victor E. Moore, science teacher, is the first of its kind at the school, and Mr. Moore hopes to make it a semi-annual part of the regular science program.

The children divided into separate groups at the Museum, each group having a common interest. The individual groups were then given specially conducted tours through those exhibit sections which appealed directly to their particular interest. They toured the exhibits of agriculture, health and medicine, aviation, electricity, chemistry, the room devoted to the Home and the display of war weapons. Those who had a general interest received a general tour of the Museum. Many of the children took the half hour trip through the operating underground coal mine where they saw real mining machinery in action. The field trip is to be followed up by written reports and discussions in class of what each pupil observed.

The group made the trip into Chicago over the Rock Island and Illinois Central Railroads, and had lunch at the Museum. They were accompanied by Mr. Moore and thirteen other adults who assumed charge of each interest group. Those who acted as leaders were: Miss Florence Beabout, Miss Lynn Chilton and Mrs. Ruth Mainwood, teachers. Mrs. Ivan Archibald, Mrs. Max Ehrlich, Mrs. Chas. Gilgan, Mrs. Walter Hamilton, Mrs. John Louck, Mrs. Wm. Penn, Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Mrs. Arvid Swanson, Mrs. Anthony Vackar and Mrs. Grace Walden PTA members and mothers.

MOKENA CIVIC ASSOCIATION KILLS PLAN TO SPONSOR 4H CLUB AND VICTORY GARDENS

Due to the fact that only five students of the Mokena school signed up for the 4-H and Victory Garden Project which the Mokena Civic Association recently signified its willingness to sponsor, the Association at their meeting Monday evening voted to drop the project.

Many of the students are working their own Victory gardens and would hardly have time to work in Community Victory Gardens.

Frankfort Lions Club Interested In House Numbering

The Frankfort Lions Club members assembled Tuesday evening in the parlors of the Frankfort Methodist church at their regular monthly dinner and meeting. A very delicious meal had been prepared by the ladies of the church.

Following the meal, a community sing was enjoyed. Later the members enjoyed a social hour of good fellowship.

Mayor George Sangmeister was present and read a letter which the Village Officials had received from their Engineers, McCoy and Mulford, of Chicago Heights, relative to the cost of drawing up a map and preparing a system for erecting street signs and numbering the homes and business places in Frankfort.

This topic has been under discussion for some time. The Club signified their readiness to assist the village officials in putting the project over.

The Lions favored a more simplified street marker by way of a light brown post with the name of the street burned into the wood, similar to the style in vogue in Plainfield and other towns. The Lions also agreed to donate whatever labor is needed in erecting the street signs.

Lion President Albert Krusemark Jr., asked the recently appointed industrial committee for a report but they were not prepared to give any details at present.

The Lions also discussed details of a plan to erect and dedicate a Service Board in front of the Village hall, listing the names of the boys from the Village of Frankfort now in the Service of their country.

FRANKFORT FLYER SALUTES MOTHER FROM PLANE

Flying low over the village of Frankfort Friday morning Lt. Robt. Mitchell saluted his mother and friends by circling on his way to the Municipal airport at Chicago. He was flying an "Attack Plane" from his station in North Carolina, where he returned by train the next day. His mother, Mrs. Blanche Mitchell, his sister Georgia and aunt Mrs. Chas. Scheer drove to the airport to meet him and bring him home.

NEW LENOX GARDEN CLUB MEETS MAY 6

The New Lenox Garden Club will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. O. V. Rowe Thursday afternoon, May 6. The club members and guests will meet at the home of Mrs. Frank Vally at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Vally and Mrs. Rowe both have extensive Tulip gardens and it is hoped the Tulips will be in full bloom at this time.

NEW LENOX PTA INSTALLS NEW OFFICERS

The installation of new officers took place at the last monthly meeting of the New Lenox PTA held at the school Tuesday, evening April 13. Mrs. Herbert Senning will be president for the coming year. Mrs. Anthony Vackar, in behalf of the PTA, was presented with a beautiful orchid in appreciation of her extensive efforts during the past year as president of the PTA.

The new Board of directors are: Mrs. W. Hamilton, program chairman; Mrs. Wm. Connors, Hospitality chairman; Mrs. S. Hauck, Membership; Mrs. Wm. Brockman, Summer Round up; Mrs. Wm. Kay, Publications; Mrs. A. Peterson, Homemakers; Mrs. C. Luther, Room Representative; Mrs. A. Vackar, Legislation; Mrs. Melvin Whitaker, Publicity; Mrs. Victor Moore, pianist; Mr. H. Ewing Auditing; Mr. Luke Boynton, Musical director. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Mrs. R. Melvin Whitaker, Publicity.

WIDOW OF FRANKFORT PIONEER DIES AT AGE OF 91

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at College Church in Wheaton for Mrs. Salina Hunter, widow of Daniel Hunter, Frankfort pioneer. Mrs. Hunter was born in Chicago 91 years ago and lived on the family homestead east of Frankfort on the Lincoln Highway until 1914, when the family moved to Chicago Heights. In 1925 they moved to Wheaton where she died Thursday, April 15. She is survived by two sons Gamble, of British Columbia, Canada; Lloyd of Wheaton, and three daughters, Mrs. Bessie Stevens and Ruth of Wheaton and Jean of Chicago. Attending the funeral from Frankfort were Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter and son Donald, Miss Helen Woodman and Miss Augusta Baumgartner.

Easter 1943

Deeply, Truly, do we pray
That Easter may impart
Its inspiration and its gift
Of gladness to your heart,
As on that Easter long ago
Hope was again reborn,
May faith, and joy, and happiness
Be yours this Easter morn.
May the risen Prince of Peace
Grant these gifts to you,
Faith, in Heaven's guidance,
Hope, that's deep and true,
And his strong, abiding love
To bless you day by day!

ORLAND PARK VOTES 2 MILL TAX FOR FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY

A special 2 mill tax for the maintenance of the free public library at Orland Park was the chief point of interest in the Orland Park Village election Tuesday.

A total of 43 votes was cast in favor of the proposition and 10 against. On the same ballot with the special tax proposition, six candidates for the Board of Library Directors were also voted for as follows:

Mrs. James T. Pomeroy for 2 years term, 46 votes, Mrs. Geo. Cox for 2 year term, 47 votes, Mrs. Howard Creer for 4 year term, 48 votes, Mrs. Lloyd Cowan for 4 year term, 44 votes; Mrs. Orville Schmadeke, for 6 year term, 50 votes, Mrs. Chas. Maddox, 6 year term, 43 votes.

Three village trustees were re-elected without opposition for 4 year terms. They are: Herman Uthe, 54 votes, Harry Heiting, 50 votes, J. F. Schmadeke, 49 votes.

ONLY 34 VOTES CAST IN FRANKFORT VILLAGE ELECTION

With no opposition, the voters of Frankfort did not take much interest in the village election held Tuesday. Only 34 votes were cast. Three trustees were elected for a four year term.

NEW LENOX STUDENTS TAKE UP VICTORY GARDEN AND OTHER PROJECTS

Students of the New Lenox school have joined the 4H club and are taking up projects of raising Victory gardens, poultry, live stock etc., as well as doing Victory services of various kinds at home. The students who have enrolled in this patriotic project are: Eugene Rice, Ted Hobson, Ed. Knowles, A. Swanson, Harold Reinhardt, Beldon Schroeder, Peggy Luther, Shirley Wilderberg, Evelyn Slick, Mary Parkhurst, Rosemary Archibald, Leona Strasburg.

The meetings of the club will be conducted in a parliamentary way. Business and regular meetings will be held each month with a social meeting two weeks later.

Victor Moore, principal of the New Lenox school has been selected as leader of the group.

MEDICAL UNIT TO MEET AT MOKENA MONDAY NIGHT

All those who have completed their Red Cross First Aid and OGD training in Mokena are invited to attend a meeting to be held at the Sippel store building in Mokena on Monday evening at 8 pm. This meeting is to be under the direction of the Medical unit.

Mokena Festival Out Until The War Is Over

The Mokena Civic Club at their meeting held Monday evening voted to drop the annual Mokena Home Coming and Fall Festival for the duration of the war. The Association finds it is impossible to purchase merchandise for prizes to procure entertainment features, concessions, etc. and the ration system is raising havoc with food and refreshments as well as ice cream, gasoline etc. Consequently it was deemed best to drop the Home Coming this year and for the duration.

After the war the Association contemplates sponsoring the Home Coming again and the first one to be held when peace is again declared may be of a week's duration instead of the three days formerly held.

The Civic Association sponsored the first Home Coming Oct. 21, 22, 1938, and every year after that the event grew more in popularity until in 1942 it attracted thousands of visitors during the 3 days it was held.

It is with regret, that the Civic Association took this action to discontinue the Home Coming, but deemed it best to do so under present conditions.

MOKENA MEAT MARKET CLOSING IN BUSINESS 20 YEARS

As a result of war time rationing of meats and the difficulty experienced in getting supplies, Martin Muehler who has been operating a meat market in Mokena for the past 20 years, has closed his place of business.

LINCOLN ESTATES TO DEDICATE SERVICE FLAG MAY 9th

Ora Andrews and other patriotic and public spirited citizens of Lincoln Estate, east of Frankfort, have been active of late in arranging for a service flag and pole, and an attractive spot has been procured along the Lincoln Highway in the west side of the Estates for the location of the pole.

Tentative plans call for a Service Flag dedication on Mother's Day, May 9th. The Rayfield Meyer Legion Post of Matteson, Mayor Elliott of Matteson, Rev. Rudolph Malek of the Frankfort Methodist church are among those to take part in the program.

The Estates have 39 boys in the Armed Forces. More details of the dedicatory services will be given later.

NEW VILLAGE TRUSTEE ELECTED AT TINLEY PARK

A total of 151 votes were cast in the Tinley Park village election Tuesday. Three village trustees were elected for the full term of 4 years and 1 trustee was elected for an unexpired term. One new trustee was chosen for the full term he being Clarence Norris of the south Elmore Subdivision. He defeated James C. English who has served as trustee of the village board for the past 6 years. The successful candidates and their votes are as follows: Arthur Schoeneck 92 votes, Wm. Wannemacher 111, Clarence Norris 106, Raymond Jacobs 87. James English, the defeated candidate received 82 votes.

LOCAL CHURCH PEOPLE HEAR NOTED MISSIONARY SPEAKER

Mr. E. Stanley Jones who has been and still is, a missionary at large in India, from the Methodist church, and who at present is in this country, spoke in the Chicago Heights Methodist church Tuesday evening to an over-flow attendance.

Mr. Jones who was offered the office of Bishop in this country a number of years ago and who refused it, preferring his work in India where he is much interested and has much influence with the religious leaders in that country in the Hindu and Mohammedan faiths. His life work is the adoption of Christianity by these faiths found in India.

Among the many fine things Mr. Jones said Tuesday evening was, "If you do not live with God, you cannot live with yourself and then can not live with others" Thus we have wars.

A number of people from the Mokena and Tinley Park Methodist churches with their pastor attended this meeting.

America Loved In Middle East

By Gordon Gaskill

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Woman's Home Companion.)

Since time means nothing in the great bazaar of Damascus, I had contentedly spent a full half hour haggling the price of a dagger with a merchant named, like all Syrians apparently, Ali Hassan.

Then for the first time he noticed the brass insignia on my uniform: "U. S." His eyes opened wide. "What!" he cried. "You American?"

I nodded and Ali Hassan pondered my answer for a moment. Then suddenly he held out the dagger.

"Take it," he said, "take it free for nothing, and the next time you see that President Roosevelt, give him the dagger as a present from me and tell him he has the love of Ali Hassan of Damascus."

So I took the dagger, and told him I would, and I will—for I think I shall never forget the look in his eyes as he said the name of Roosevelt.

High Opinion of U. S.

I have now been in the Middle East long enough to be past amazement at such behavior. But at first, before I became immune, I was astonished and touched to find how enormously America bulks in the thoughts and dreams of the entire Middle East. To find how American products are cherished and used—and sometimes oddly misused. To find how the ancient East is becoming Americanized.

For example, merely because I was an American, a Jewish merchant in Beirut had given me the best pair of shorts in his shop, a Free French tobacconist had pressed rare and expensive cigarettes on me, an Arab restaurateur had refused payment for my dinner, and a Greek woman who runs a printing shop had waved aside money for some visiting cards. Instead, she wept as she told me how the Nazis had killed one son, how another son works in New York, and how much she loves all Americans.

"All Americans," she said simply, "will go to heaven. All of them. I am certain." I let it go at that.

Prized American Cigarettes.

When I entered Syria at a remote border point, the frontier official waived all formalities, and I gave him a package of American cigarettes. "The first I've had in two years!" he breathed and he took them as if they were gold. They almost were, for in Beirut they were selling for a dollar a pack.

Syria has always loved Americans. Most of us forget, if we ever knew, that after the last war Syria voted to have the United States rule her. When America declined, France took the mandate instead.

America has been generous to Syrians who emigrated and often found their fortunes. Almost every other Syrian you meet has a kinsman in America and asks something like: "Do you know my son, Joseph, in the state of Philadelphia?"

Zahle, a charming city in the Lebanon's lovely Valley of Mulberries, especially cherishes Americans. There are 20,000 Zahlians in Zahle, but 20,000 more live in America. The local newspaper actually has more subscribers in America than in Zahle itself. I went to Zahle to stay one day and left, very regretfully, after ten days of unbelievably generous hospitality.

A Kiss for the President.

It was in Zahle, for instance, that a woman of about 50 came up to me as I was walking along the main street and asked me, in French, whether I was really an American. I said yes, and she asked if she could kiss me, then and there. So she did, on both cheeks. "Once for President Roosevelt, and once for all other Americans, may God bless them."

What she said about "all other Americans" makes a point that should be underlined: This lavish gratitude and hospitality that Americans in the Middle East are receiving is emphatically not for us as individuals, but as symbols of the 130,000,000 Americans back home. Through us here, they are thanking everybody in the States.

Even the money situation helps this pleasant state of affairs. For example, the lowest paid American ordinary seaman receives today at least $200 a month, or about as much as a British major. And the dollar is at a premium, worth in purchasing power nearly a half more than face value.

For economy's sake, American merchant marine officers have discarded their ancient prejudice against wearing their rather snappy uniforms on shore. They have discovered that a uniform—any uniform—saves.

War's End for These Italians in Tunisia

Jap Prisoners Leave South Pacific for Duration

Appearing quite happy, and with a definitely well-fed look, these Jap prisoners while away the time aboard the ship which is transporting them out of the South Pacific warzone for the duration. Chinese checkers amuse the pair on the mattress on the deck, while at the right the lad with the bandaged toes grins broadly for the cameraman.

Putting on the Heat in a Cold Country

U. S. infantrymen unhesitatingly leap (top) into the icy waters of a mountain stream during maneuvers in Alaska. Below: A machine gun crew takes up position on a snow-covered, wind-swept elevation. Scrambling through snowbanks and wading through icy streams soon makes tough soldiers of these boys from offices, shops and farms. They become just as tough as the country.

Sound and Fury for the Enemy

Shakespeare wrote of sound and fury "signifying nothing," which is quite the opposite of the sound and fury depicted here. Navy 16-inch guns are letting go with a thunderous roar during powder tests at the Dahlgren naval ordnance depot, at Dahlgren, Va. Powder tests determine some of the factors which go into more efficient firing of these big berthas.

Proves His Point

Lieut. H. E. Miller, who saw a German FW-190 nearly blow the tail off a Flying Fortress flying ahead of him, thought the hole wide enough for him to walk through. Back at the home station he had a chance to prove it. The pilot who flew the crippled ship home was Lieut. Donald E. Stockton, shown at right.

Washington, D. C.

WHITE HOUSE SPRING DAYS

When the White House butler says "Dinner is served," it doesn't mean what it used to mean. Most of the time, it's nothing more than a simple three-course meal for two or three persons, served not in the state dining room, or even in the family dining room on the first floor, but in the President's study on the second floor.

Except for the occasional visit of a South American president, social activity at the White House has disappeared. Roosevelt dines with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins, Justice Byrnes, Judge Sam Rosenman, or perhaps with Grace Tully, his blue-eyed, white-haired private secretary. Mrs. Roosevelt is off-again, on-again, as usual.

A friend of Gen. "Pa" Watson, aide to the President, sent him some finnan haddie the other day, and Watson passed it along to the President. "Meat," said Watson, "or anything that passes for meat, is as precious as gold these days." The President enjoyed the free finnan haddie.

If Grace Tully is there for dinner, it means work after dinner. On the average of two evenings a week, the dictation isn't finished in the daytime, and Grace stays over. For the war has not decreased the President's dictation. Jimmy Byrnes remarked the other day, "I don't see how he can handle so much paper work."

Fact is, the President is leaning heavily on letters, and cutting down interviews. His appointments run from 10:30 to lunch, with an occasional conference at two o'clock. But afternoons are reserved for dictating to Grace Tully. The only thing to throw this regimen out of gear is an afternoon press conference, a talk with a man like Anthony Eden—or the spring sunshine.

Sometimes the President swings around from his desk, takes a quick look at the sunshine over the South Grounds, and says to his Scottie, "Let's go for a ride—what do you say, Fella?"

A Ride in the Country.

This means a quiet tour into the country, without motorcycle escort, in a car which looks like anybody else's shiny limousine, and stops at the traffic lights like the car of any ordinary citizen.

Members of the President's intimate staff insist they see no change in him under the pressure of war. The war hasn't altered his mood or his methods. He still laughs heartily, eats well, and dictates methodically, with never a "read that back to me."

Grace Tully explains it by saying the President is a psychologist, and he keeps a good temper for the sake of the people around him.

The slackened social activity doesn't shut out the house guests, however. Any day, Mrs. Roosevelt is likely to get a letter from old friends or relatives who are coming to town, and she replies. "Won't you stay with us?"

They do. They come for a day or two, sometimes for a week. But they go their ways, and see little of the President. He will dine with them once in the course of the visit, but the rest of the time, "dinner is served" for two or three in the private study.

In short, evenings are very quiet at the White House, and except for the President's own late hours at his desk, the electric light bill is the lowest in years.

MERRY GO ROUND

Efficient Governor Holland of Florida is not expected to run against efficient Claude Pepper for the senate. . . . The last time Claude ran he was vacationing in Scotland shortly after his nomination when a voice called his hotel room. "Senator, I am an American Press representative in Scotland and we have a cable that your election in Florida has been contested." "I'll be right down," replied the alarmed Pepper. It was Jesse Jones, with Stewart MacDonald, Federal Housing administrator, playing a practical joke.

Nicest compliment Rep. Warren Magnuson of Washington received on his report for the naval affairs committee regarding ship-building bottlenecks came from the navy department, which Magnuson criticized for delays in submitting shipbuilding plans and specifications as well as in furnishing materials. . . . Undersecretary James V. Forrestal wrote: "I want to congratulate you both on the thoroughness with which your work was done and the restraint with which your criticism and suggestions were phrased."

Supreme Court Justice Roberts agrees with Vice President Wallace that the difficulties of the Constitutional convention after the Revolutionary war were similar to the difficulties of establishing world government now—but not insurmountable.

Abolition of the Austrian Legion under Crown Prince Otto as a U. S. army unit came as the result of violent protests from Austrians, Hungarians, Slovaks inside the army who were glad to fight for the U.S.A. but not for the return of the Hapsburgs.

A Good Start

A business man tells of a friend who said to him one day: "Life—well, it's just not worth living; it's just one trouble after another. But I'm going to try out a new scheme. . . . I've just engaged a man, and whenever I have a worry, I'm going to pass it on to him and he'll have to take care of it." "That's a good idea," said the other. "What are you going to pay him?"

"A thousand a year." "What's that? You complain of bad trade, and pay a man a thousand a year to take care of your worries. Where are you going to get the money?" "Well," said the friend, "I reckon that's going to be his first worry."

MURDER at PIRATE'S HEAD

By ISABEL WAITT

W-N-U RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Jason, who is telling the story, receives an anonymous letter enclosing $800 and asking her to bid for an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day. She finds, in an old chest, the body of a man identified as Roddy Lane. The body disappears a few hours later. A fish shed burns, apparently killing an old man named Brown who is supposed to have lived there. Judy finds Roddy Lane's diamond in her handbag. Lily Kendall is found dead, with Hugh Norcross' scarf around her neck. Albion Potter gives Judy a picture of the church he has just finished. Bessie Norcross writes a confession. Now continue with Judy's story.

CHAPTER XVI

"She confessed to save—him!" Even I could see it, now that Victor had pointed it out. During the reading, I'd noticed a few discrepancies in Bessie's confession, but nowhere near the number he had. Take the wind itself, for instance. It couldn't have blown the blue scarf back into the Pirate's Mouth because there was a land breeze before the tide turned, and the place was entirely sheltered.

"We've got to show it to the police."

"And incriminate the brother she tried to save?"

"May not incriminate him," Victor said. "It's the cleverest thing I ever read. What Bessie says about her light not showing from the path to the bluff; little things like that. And her timing's pretty good, too, only she's forgotten Mr. Quincy was sitting on the piazza all the evening, until she wheeled him down to the church. He saw her go up to her room, before dark, and she didn't come down again. But Hugh did, he admits. I think it may have been Hugh you spoke to, later."

We were walking back rapidly to where the men were working on the boat. Thaddeus Quincy had managed the ramp somehow, and was wheeling himself toward us with his table cloth tied to his cane. He passed us, giving me a reproachful glance, I thought.

"Don't forget what I told you, Judy." And he shot a warning nod at Victor. Then he stationed himself in the middle of the road and began waving his signal.

"We've got to find Norcross and tell him about this, Judy."

"He's around somewhere. I should think the scarf would eliminate him from the suspects, wouldn't you?"

"Perhaps."

"That makes you and me, Bessie and Hugh, Aunt Nella and Uncle Wylie, who aren't on the list. Why, it only leaves Potter and De Witt and Quincy!"

"Sounds simple, doesn't it? Are you forgetting your Uncle Wylie knew Miss Kendall hadn't been strangled, at a glance. He was right, it happens; but personally I had to make an examination, to be sure."

"Now, who's crazy? Maybe he made an examination, too!"

I rushed up the steps in high dudgeon. Perhaps I'd better take Thaddeus Quincy's advice. Victor Quade seemed to say things like that every little while, which forced me to suspect the suspicion. Wylie Gerry!

Hugh Norcross was coming down the stairs. He came directly toward me. "Bessie says she gave you a letter for me. I don't know what's gotten into her. She won't speak to me. Locked herself in."

Was she afraid of him? I was glad I could see the men across the road and hear my aunt's movements in the kitchen. Then Bessie's despair made me forget my own fear. "You didn't give her any more of that sleeping medicine?"

"I'll say I didn't. She takes far too much of the stuff. Why, an overdose—"

"Exactly. Don't let her have it. You'll understand when you—"

I nearly said when he'd read the letter, which would have been an admission that I'd done so myself.

"You're sweet, Judy. My sister's nerves are an awful care. Go up and see if you can get her to quiet down, will you? I wish she was out of this mess. And you, too. When it's over there's something I want to say to you. Just now all I dare say or think of is—be careful." He was squeezing my hand till it hurt.

"Where's the letter?"

"Mr. Quade has it. He's with the others at the barn. He told me to find you. It's important, Hugh." He took a few steps forward.

"You tell Bessie I'll be back soon, will you?"

"Sure," I said, glad to escape the devouring gaze of his haggard eyes. I knocked on Bessie's door. She was crying.

"Hughie? I can't sleep! I can't sleep!"

"It's Judy. Want me to get you a cup of tea?"

"No, thank you. Did you give my brother the letter?"

"He has it now."

I heard a scrambling off the bed. "Did he give you the—my medicine?"

"No. Said you couldn't have any more till night. Do let me in, Bessie—Miss Norcross. I'll rub your head if it aches so badly."

But evidently she'd flung herself on the bed again, for muffled sobs were her only reply. I gave it up finally, tiptoeing past poor Lily Kendall's room and on up into my own.

The picture of the now hateful old church stood in a corner of the hall near my door, where Victor had moved it when he'd gone to see if the $500 was still there. It stood on a newspaper, where Albion Potter had thoughtfully placed it to save the floor. I didn't pick it up until I'd made sure about the money. It was still where I'd left it! Certain peculiarities in the letter came to my mind, and it occurred to me at least Bessie had given me some hand-writing to compare, only I hadn't examined it closely. I'd go down and try to take a look. But first I picked up the picture to put it into my room.

A wet painting isn't easy to handle, but when it's wet on both sides it is really difficult. Potter had painted the entire back of the canvas an apple green, which was even wetter than parts of the picture itself. I, too, got it on my hands, and just when I placed the thing under one of the windows to dry, it fell over. I made a grab, fearing it would be spoiled and smooched, and caught it, doing more damage probably than as if I'd let it go. Now my hands and a bit of floor beyond the newspaper were a horrid sight. I seized the paper and tried to wipe off the place where my hand had been, messing up the back miserably. Then I stood the picture up again and raced downstairs to wash my hands. Never heard of painting a canvas on both sides before. Perhaps the artists did it that way now, or maybe Potter had painted on the back of another picture. It didn't matter. The thing was not to miss anything outside.

I could see Mr. Quincy still waving his red banner at the dots in the harbor. The men were hammering at the bottom of the Eleanor. The boat, they called to me, was virtually water tight—they hoped. The thing was to get it to the shore. Would I go get Wylie Gerry to tell them how? It was too heavy to carry, and they were afraid they'd scrape the patch off if they just dragged it along. Weren't there any rollers?

"Uncle Wylie'll show you. He's at the bridge." If De Witt or Potter thought I was their Western Union boy they were much mistaken. I skeddaddled over to where Victor was standing beside Hugh, who had just finished reading his sister's letter. Now he held it out to Quade.

"For God's sake, what shall I do?"

"You could destroy it."

"You read it?"

Victor nodded. "You all invited me to sort of take charge. I'll help any way I can, Norcross."

"But surely you don't think—? Bessie? She wouldn't kill an ant! She's afraid, that's all. And she'll stick to her story. You see, it wouldn't do any good to destroy this. She'd only confess all over again. She knows I'm guilty. You've got to believe me, man! I murdered Roddy Lane."

"Hugh Norcross! I—I don't believe you," I gasped, tears smarting my eyes. He didn't have the courage, I was thinking.

Victor said: "And Miss Kendall? You killed her, too, of course. Why?"

"Because she knew too much. Because she saw me coming out of Potter's room with that confounded cleansing fluid of his, and because she was on the church steps when Roddy and I had the row and I hit him. So I strangled her with my scarf. Bessie? Absurd!"

He looked like a handsome dark shadow, haunted by remorse. He crumbled his sister's letter in his hand.

"I shall tell the authorities everything. Will you agree to leave her out of this? Here, Judy," he reached in his pocket and drew out his wallet, removing a few lean bills. "Give her this. I'll be taken to jail as soon as they come. I'd rather not see her. You tell her, Quade, to keep her mouth shut."

"Don't take it, Judy. I'm telling you to keep your own mouth shut, but I suppose it's too late."

"What's all this? What's all this?" None of us had noticed the minister and Quincy, who'd come up behind us and were listening for dear life. "God bless my soul! Not you, Norcross?"

Thaddeus Quincy wheeled back a pace and took a firmer grip on his cane, even yanking off the red cloth. "Knew it was you all the time, Norcross—last night when you wouldn't answer Judy and me."

"Yes, it was I. On my way to kill Lane."

"Good heavens, Norcross, do you know what you're saying? You don't have to admit anything," Victor said. "Less you say the better for you."

"I want to talk. I want to confess. I wish to God the police would come—say, what's Potter running for?"

We could all see the artist climbing into his car and driving like mad down the narrow Neck.

"To get Gerry to help us launch the boat."

For a moment our eyes watched the car, but our ears were tuned to Hugh. He was ranting, almost the way his sister did.

"I came down here to kill Lane for what he did to my sister. I saw him coming down the Castle driveway. We went over to the church and fought it out, man to man. Hit him too hard, I guess. Anyway, he died and I put him in the chest, just as Judy said. I ought to have locked it, but I heard someone coming."

Following the pattern—following the pattern—just like the letter.

"Hugh, let me see that a minute. I'll give it right back," I said to him. He didn't seem to care what he did. He automatically handed me the crumpled ball of a letter. I turned my back and took a good look at the writing. Neat, tiny, very individualistic. Nothing at all like mine, with the money, I gave it back to him.

"—so I tied the scarf around her neck and choked her," he was almost shouting. "But she wouldn't fall through the Pirate's Mouth, so—"

"God help us all!" ejaculated De Witt.

I could see Potter's car coming back with my uncle. "How much money was it you sent me, Hughie?" I had never called him that pet name before, but he was so distraught, and I couldn't think him capable of all those crimes.

"What ails him?" Albion Potter asked.

"He's confessed," shrilled Mr. Quincy. Anyone would have thought he was enjoying himself.

"Norcross? Well, I vum!" Uncle Wylie marched straight up to Hugh.

"Keep your trap shut, young feller, me lad. Iffen you did kill Lane I guess we'll all back you up. It was—self-defense, wasn't it?"

"And Old Man Brown?"

"And Miss Kendall?" The men gathered around the boat, shaking their heads and murmuring to themselves. They might be good witnesses as far as Lane was concerned, but the others—

Uncle Wylie screamed in a high falsetto, the way he did whenever he wanted anything: "Nella!"

Auntie came running.

"Where'd you hide the Eleanor's rollers?"

"Hide 'em? How should I know? Up in the barn chamber, ain't they?" She stood, a trim whisp of a woman in a neat checkered bib apron, her gnarled hands on her hips. Then, catching sight of Hugh, "You sick, Mr. Norcross?"

Hugh raised haggard eyes and said nothing.

"I declare I feel a spell comin' on, too. Want some of my elderberry wine?" Her eye fell on the patch on the boat. "Land sakes! I'd rather put to sea in a barrel, 'tain't safe, is it, Wylie?"

Uncle Wylie was examining the patch. He looked at it outside and in, then he scratched his head. "Never git across the gap. Cove neither. Course we can roll her down and see. Me, I'd tear that thing off and do it right."

"Why don't you do it then?" his wife asked tartly.

"Take too long. Let's see if she'll hold water."

"Oh, what the heck!" Hugh sprang up to help get a log under the Eleanor. "Let's get going. I want the police to come. I want to be arrested before my sister comes down."

Thaddeus Quincy wheeled himself out of the way. De Witt stood with closed eyes, praying again, I thought. Potter and Uncle Wylie took hold of the boat.

Aunt Nella came down the steps and I went to meet her. She shot a querulous glance at Hugh and asked me what he'd meant. I tried to tell her in a breath.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—He is risen.—Mark 16:6.

"Christ is living! My people shall know it. I shall preach about it again and again until they believe as I do." So exclaimed Dr. Dale of London when the glory of Christ's resurrection laid hold of him as never before. There began that day the custom of singing an Easter hymn in his church every Sunday morning.

Easter has come again, and it ought to make us glad to recall the resurrection power of Christianity in the midst of the world's awful sorrow and death. Easter should mean more to us than ever this year, if we believe in Christ. If we do not, why not rid ourselves of the dark garments of unbelief, and put on the bright and beautiful garment of faith in a living Christ. Let us be clad in His righteousness.

The first Easter Sunday had scarcely dawned when the faithful Mary came to the tomb. Finding the stone rolled away from its entrance she ran to find Peter and John. What they came and saw, and what—or rather who—she remained and saw, make up our interesting lesson.

I. Peter and John Saw the Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10).

Peter, though he had denied his Lord, was not sent away by his brethren. They knew his true heart, and evidently the gentle and loving John had taken him to his home. Mary knew where to find him. What a tender incidental indication of the Christian spirit of the brethren of Peter.

John and Peter ran to the tomb. The unusual news so stirred them that John the younger did not think to await the slower steps of Peter. He came first, but when he did he only looked in. Peter had no hesitation, but went right in. What he found there was most significant.

Here was twofold evidence that the body of our Lord had not been stolen. The burial clothes were there. They had not been carried off by a thief. Nor had they been snatched aside by a deceiver. They lay in order. There off to one side, carefully folded, was the head covering. Jesus was gone, but He had left in all the dignity and majesty of a triumphant Lord.

What they saw caused John to believe. It appears (v. 9) that they had not yet understood the clear teachings of the Old Testament regarding the death and resurrection of Christ. They were slow to believe. Let not any in our day, with its greater light, fail to believe.

Peter and John came and saw—and then "they went away again unto their own home." And so they missed seeing Christ Himself.

II. Mary Met the Risen Christ (vv. 11-17).

The tears of Mary were the genuine expression of a devoted heart, but they were nevertheless mistaken tears. The question of the angel reveals that fact. Why weep because His body was gone, when that was the very thing which should give her joy? Why weep over a dead Christ when He was alive?

How often our discernment is dimmed by tears and our judgment warped by sorrow. We look on the wrong side of our circumstances and see only a tangle of threads and blurred colors. On the other side God is weaving a pattern of beauty and blessing, which will be our joy through all eternity. Why not remember that now?

Blinded with tears and troubled in heart, Mary did not even recognize the Lord when He spoke to her. But our Lord looking into her soul and knowing that it was her very love for Him which made it hard for her to think of anything but His death, gave to this true-hearted woman the privilege of first seeing Him after His resurrection.

As He spoke her name, she knew Him. We recall that Jesus Himself had said that He was the Good Shepherd who "callesth his own sheep by name" (John 10:3-14).

He knows your name and mine, fellow Christian, and one day we too shall hear His voice even as Mary did on that day. She believed and worshiped. Let us follow her example this Easter day.

There is a danger that the observance of Easter may lose its real significance in the empty incidents which the world would have us believe make the day. It is a holiday. There is thought of new clothes, of formal church attendance, of family gatherings, of flowers and feasting. They are all right in their proper place. But let us be sure that no adult fails to meet the risen Christ today, and let us be sure that the smallest child knows that this is more than the day of bunnies and candy eggs. They will rejoice in the knowledge that a victorious Christ lives to give them eternal life.

Let us really "keep the feast" this year, purging out the leaven of poverty and dead works, and receiving Christ (see I Cor. 5:7, 8).

ON THE HOME FRONT With RUTH WYETH SPEARS

Pin and trim to fit, as shown. Seams that are to be sewn without welting are pinned and basted from the wrong side. Unpin seams where welting is to be used. Baste the welting to the right side of the seam edge, then baste the seam. A right-toe cording foot is best for welting seams as it allows the bulky material to be on the left where it will rest on the machine leaf.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR MASTITIS

Due to Streptococcus Agalactiae

Here is good news for every farmer who has Mastitis in his herd. About ninety per cent of all Mastitis, or Garget, is caused by Streptococcus agalactiae. The new discovery, Beebe G-Lac, (Tyrothricin) consists of Gramicidin and Tyrocidin. Beebe G-Lac stops the action of Streptococcus agalactiae. If Mastitis, due to this microbe, is cutting into your milk production... if your best dairy cows are in danger—act now! Get Beebe G-Lac. You'll be amazed at the results. Beebe G-Lac is easy to inject into the teat canal. Beebe G-Lac goes right to work. Don't let Mastitis (due to Streptococcus agalactiae) rob you of your profits. Get Beebe G-Lac today.

MASTITIS TESTING SERVICE
Let us arrange laboratory tests of milk samples from your cows. Only 15c per sample tested. Ask us for details. No obligation.

PLANT WITH Confidence

Under good conditions or bad, your Funk's "G" Hybrid will produce more and better corn for you. Under good conditions Funk's "G" makes the most of the favorable factors to produce record yields.

If you have an unfavorable season, weatherproofed "G" Hybrids are real protection for you. "Bred to Beat the Elements," these famous strains actually make some of their best records when the "breaks" are against them.

So plant with confidence, Funk's "G" Hybrids.

CALL TO THE COLORS—And the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps marches to the field to replace able bodied enlisted men in rear-line jobs. In the WAAC are opportunities for American women 21 to 44 years old, inclusive. Those who enroll receive pay equal to a soldier's—for equal rank and grade. Every woman who enrolls has an equal opportunity to advance to specialist rating, non-commissioned officer grades or Officer Candidate School. Additional information and application blanks for enrollment may be obtained at any United States Army Recruiting Station. WAAC officers are on duty at many of them.

interesting as well as educating especially London, but nevertheless I'd return at the first opportunity.

We have been having some swell weather its remarkable how beautiful the flowers are already and such a variety of them too.

I noticed that Braun's Recreation Bowling team is giving the leaders a little trouble which I'm sure is due to Gus's roundhouse. I miss my bowling as that is one sport they don't pay very much attention to.

Thanks again for remembering me and I wish each and everyone of my old friends the best of health.

Sincerely,

- Marshall.

New Bern, N. C. April 14.

Mr. Semmler,

Dear Sir:

Just a few lines to thank you for the News-Bulletin which comes regular every week. It is nice to get news from home. My address is a little different now. I am kept rather busy here. The weather is changeable here.

Sincerely,

Pvt. Carl M. Ginder, Co. E, 111th Inf., M.F.-C.B.S., Camp Battle, New Bern, N. C.

Dear Mr. Semmler:

Thank you so much for sending me the News-Bulletin every week. It really means a lot to get all the news of home. I have been moved to Denver from El Paso, Texas, and I want to give you my new address as follows: Cpl. James E. Stevens, 999th Med. Co., Fitzsimmons Gen. Hospital, Denver, Colo.

I am waiting here to be assigned to a permanent post. Denver is a fine town and the people here are very good to soldiers. Good luck to you and to all my friends in New Lenox and Marley.

Cpl. James E. Stevens. Good luck to all you boys! I am so glad to be able to do something to make you boys happy. Wish we could do more.

When Elnor Mumson called at our office last Thursday while home on furlough, he told us of incidents when he was on K. P. duties, how he helped to break 112 dozen of eggs and of the baking bread.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cappel will move next week into the Nordseil home. Mrs. Phillip Provic and husband and daughter Marie and family will move into her home vacated by the Cappels.

Milton Krapp of Cable, Wis., who has been visiting with his father for the past week returned home Wednesday.

Mrs. Chas. Olson from Mentone, Ind., was a caller in Mokena Wednesday.

CARD OF THANKS

I sincerely thank all those who so loyally supported me at the polls in Tuesday's election.

HOMER

By Mrs. Kopelman

Miss Glenna Mae Paddock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Paddock and Private First Class Arnold Bertelsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bertelsen were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Paddock home.

In the living room an altar banked with palms, ferns and flowers, made a beautiful setting for the wedding. Rev. R. J. Synwolt, pastor of the First Methodist church in Lockport officiated.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Paul Sandstrom, pianist, played Liebertraum wedding march after which Mrs. Charles Snyder sang "I Love You Truly" and "Always."

As the wedding party walked slowly into the room, Lohengrin's wedding march was played.

The bride was very attractive in a two piece dress of dusty blue Victory mesh street length and trimmed with tiny double ruffles. Her accessories were navy blue and her ribbon hat was flower trimmed. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Robert Crobie served her sister as bridesmaid. Her gown was a pale gold crepe with which she wore brown accessories. Her hat of brown ribbon was trimmed with yellow flowers and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

John Bertelsen served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Paddock, mother of the bride wore a navy blue dress and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Paddock was gown in a black crepe and also wore a corsage of pink carnations.

A three course dinner was served to the bridal party and near relatives. Mrs. Perkins of Lockport and Mrs. Walter Ott prepared the dinner and it was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Owen Ott, Mrs. Frank Hartman and Mrs. Robert Jungles.

Open house was held in the evening hours from 8 o'clock until 10 o'clock and many friends went in to wish the young couple much happiness. The bridal couple were the recipients of many gifts and gifts of money.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bertelsen departed on a short honeymoon.

Arnold will return to his duties at Camp Clayborne, Louisiana, April 26th where he is stationed and his bride will reside with her parents for the present. This week will be spent at the home of the groom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rodgers are the parents of a baby girl, born at Silver Cross hospital Friday, April 16. The little girl has been named Faye Ann and will be a playmate to Rita Rita, the other daughter of the family.

A state meeting of Congregational churches will be held May 3, 4, and 5 at Oak Park and delegates from the Homer church will be appointed next week. Rev. John Borden will be one of the speakers.

On Thursday evening the last mid-week lenten service, a communion service will be held. At this time the babies of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Anderson will be baptized.

Easter service will be observed at the local church at 11 o'clock. The choir will sing "The Holy City" and Miss Eleanor Kopelman will favor with an Easter solo.

Sunday School will convene at 11 o'clock.

Several from this church will attend the Sunrise service and breakfast at the Palos Park Community Center on Easter.

Wednesday afternoon the Woman's club met in the home of Mrs. Ray Myers. Mrs. Helen Rowley

Buy Our Feeds

Our feeds are properly balanced with vitamins and cod liver oil. Nine times out of 10 low production and colds in chickens is caused by lack of Cod Liver Oil. We manufacture our own feeds and sell these high grade feeds for less than you can buy inferior grade feeds. We also manufacture a full line of Dairy, Hog, Goat and Rabbit and Poultry Feeds. Also Hog and Poultry and Dairy concentrates. Always the best is less.

Captain
Eddie Rickenbacker
says: OF TORPEDO
SQUADRON 8

"To these boys should go the undying gratitude of every man, woman, and child within the boundaries of the United States of America for their daring accomplishments and loyalty to the cause, that will go down in history as one of the outstanding epics of World War II.

"Few of us can visualize the strength of character and courage needed and displayed by the members of Torpedo Squadron 8 in their willingness to help destroy a vicious enemy when death faced them.

"Let every American—man, woman and child—on the home front try in his humble way to equal the efforts of these men, because none of us can ever hope to approximate their sacrifices."

They didn't count the cost

Every American knows the suicide saga of Torpedo Squadron 8. How it lost all 15 planes and all but one of its 30 men in a mission which helped produce our great victory at Midway. It was these boys who found the Jap fleet. Who radioed its position. And without the necessary fighter and high altitude bomber support dove to the attack.

This week the big 2nd War Loan Drive is on! Our country is not asking us to give or even risk our lives. She simply wants us to lend her money. And this 13 billion dollars must be raised during April to assure more torpedo squadrons—more victories like Midway.

It's true we've done a good job so far. But this war is far from won. The Japs are building new airfields in Kiska on American soil. Submarines are sinking our supply ships within sight of our own shores.

It's a long way from Casablanca to Berlin, or Tokio.

While you help your country you will help yourself. Your purchases of War Bonds help retard inflation. They are as safe as your government. And when Victory has been won you will have saved the money you need for a new home, new car, new luxuries.

You may say, "But I've been buying War Bonds. Paying higher taxes. Giving up conveniences." If you think you're doing all you can, recall the last words of Commander Waldron to Squadron 8: "Of course, we will strike regardless of the consequences." Unquestionably answering this new call will mean more self-denial. Giving up more luxuries. Additional inconveniences. But on the hot sands of Tunisia, in the steaming jungles of New Guinea, in that "hell-hole" at Guadalcanal... other men are doing more.

Make your IDLE dollars FIGHTING dollars!

Let Us Have Faith

Besides buying War Bonds and Stamps, we here at home have a duty to perform to keep faith with the boys at the front. To keep ourselves financially strong so there'll be jobs and homes for them to come back to—and the kind of a country they're fighting for.

To this end this bank is co-operating with the people of our territory in every way possible. That is our duty, as we understand it.

The Community Center Foundation invites you to its annual Sunrise Service at 7 a. m. Easter morning. Ministers of local churches will share in making the service one of dedication to the experience of resurrection. The urgent distress facing our lives today makes it imperative that we seek clearer insights into spiritual realities. Breakfast will be served after the service. Reservations for this should be made in advance. The Center has felt the need of a chapel to accommodate the many weddings and baptisms their friends ask them to celebrate and provide a place for personal meditation. The room in the old Lodge has served well for this purpose, but with the increasing number of people using the facilities it seems necessary to have a place set apart for distinctly religious purposes. Hope has not been given up for the Chapel on the hill but until that is possible they have set aside one of the small rooms in the new building for the purpose. It is now being remodeled into a rustic chapel which will accommodate about 20 people at one time. It will lend itself very nicely to most temporarily the great need we feel for a quiet place in the midst of the Foundation's unceasing activity. They hope to have this ready by Easter.

Farm Commentator, Hearst Daily 6:15-6:45 am on WMAQ—670 on your dial

With the coming of these balmy spring days a lot of prospective victory gardeners have been out poking in their vegetable plots.

With food rationing coming along here's a good bet for your garden. Our friends at Kansas State College have called our attention to a new soybean, the Bansei. Soybeans have been an important food item in several countries for a long time, and can be used for flavor and cooking quality.

If you get a chance look into the Bansei. It's a dry bean which can be used in much the same way as navy beans. Its food value is much higher than the navy beans too, with a high comparative fat and protein content.

Another thing victory gardeners might think about is this: why not try to add a few new vegetables to the list of standbys this year. Many of my friends seem to think that the one-crop garden is out for the duration. Here's a tip in planning a garden. Vegetables such as tomatoes, chard, and others which occupy the ground all season should be placed together with perennial vegetables along one side of the garden. Vegetables that occupy the ground only part of the season can be followed by other quick-maturing kinds such as lettuce, radishes, or set onions which should be placed in a block by themselves. I am sure that this arrangement will make your victory gardening easier.

In case any of you have collected some seeds from last year's garden, make sure that you go through them to remove weed seeds and dirt. You might not remove all weed seeds, but it will help your garden as well as save a lot of back-breaking weed-pulling.

Until you hear from me next time, here's a lot of good luck on your back yard farming.

AMERICAN LEGION WEEK FOR

U S O

★ We've Helped ★

The fighting spirit which 25 years ago was pushing them through the Argonne forests will be turned loose in the interests of their newest buddies—the service men of World War II—by the American Legion the week of July 20. Throughout Chicago and its suburbs, these men who know only too well what off-duty recreational facilities can mean to the man in uniform will step out, 15,000 strong, to provide a whirlwind finish for the United Service Organizations War Fund campaign. Armed with receipt books, they will ask everyone—in homes, in neighborhood stores, in shops and offices—"Have you helped?" as part of their American Legion Week for U.S.O. The window sticker, shown above, will offer the only immunity in the "all-out" attack, and by the closing time on July 27 Legionnaires propose to have them on at least a million windows throughout the Chicago district.

WARNED TO PROVIDE AID TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS

A warning issued today by Mr. Irving Pearson, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association, in the April issue of Illinois Education, stated that failure to provide the needed state and local aid to public schools will create an educational and social emergency which will blight the history of the State for many years to come. The Illinois Education Association and other state wide organizations are backing bills now in the legislature to increase the State School Distributive Fund by six and one half million dollars for the biennium.

Mr. Pearson stated that school officials are reporting that unless some relief is provided from the state treasury school boards will not be able to retain many of their best teachers. He stated that it would require $13,000,000 a year to apply the principle of the "little steel formula" to the salaries of public school teachers in Illinois.

Pearson's article in the April issue of Illinois Education stated further: Every yardstick of the State's ability indicates that the requested increase in state aid for schools is just, conservative and warranted. The full increase requested must be provided if the schools of the State are to continue to operate even fairly well. The failure of the State to provide the increase would burden local communities with increased taxes above and beyond the increases which rightfully should be sought at the local level.

YOUR STAKE IN THE COST OF WAR

"Renegotiation of war contracts"

is a heavy-sounding term, and newspaper readers in the sections of America where public interests are localized and largely agricultural may wonder how such a subject can concern them.

But since every taxpayer has a personal stake in any measure that increases government expense and adds to the public payroll, especially at a time when every dollar is needed for the war effort, then this question of contracts for equipment and supplies becomes vital to all.

"Renegotiation"

In the early days of lend-lease and of the huge task of mustering an armed force of millions of men, a few contractors receiving fat orders saw in these government contracts only a new gold mine. To meet the relatively small number of abuses which were brought to light, the last Congress passed a law requiring that all new and old Army, Navy and Maritime Commission contracts be written with a "renegotiation" clause, so that they could be refigured in the search for cases where contractors were making too large a profit.

This law requires that the Army, Navy and Maritime commission each employ a separate force of men to re-estimate all contracts for buildings, machinery, tanks, airplanes, guns, clothing, and the thousand items industry must turn out for war use.

The law seemed wise and harmless at first, but evidently it was not realized how large an "army" of employees would be needed to enforce it.

It is estimated that there are some three million such contracts, over 20,000 contractors, and an unknown number of sub-contractors. If the original law were carried out, it might easily require 200,000 new public payrollers, and 300,000 new employees hired by contractors to prepare the data for the federal authorities, and this at a time when manpower is scarce and every able-bodied person is needed for service in uniform or production work at home. The job would take years even after the war.

Amendments Not Sufficient

Agriculture and industry are short of machinery and manpower, and these men are too badly needed in producing crops and equipment for ourselves and our allies to be wasted in checking up on contracts, especially when there is already an efficient means of doing that work.

USELESS SPENDING

Senator Harry F. Byrd, in a recent press release, said in part:

"The United States Civil Service Commission reports as of August 31, 1942, that there were 2,666,300 employees of the United States government . . . On Armistice Day, November 11, 1918, there was a total of 917,760 civilian federal employees. We have three times that many now. In the last World War we had one civilian employee for every four and one-half members in the armed service. In this war, we have so far one civilian employee to every one and three-fourths members of the armed forces, the ratio being two and one-half times more per soldier, and we are still increasing our civilian personnel at the rate of over 3,000 daily . . . On November 11, 1918, there were thirty agencies of the government. Today there are 81 distinct agencies, many of these making no direct contribution to the war effort."

This remarkable statement should receive the careful consideration of every American citizen. When we consider that, since the release by Senator Byrd, the President has submitted his budget to Congress for the fiscal year, calling for 100 billion dollars for our war effort and nine billion additional for civic expenditures, we gain some idea of what the conduct of this war is going

True, the original bill has been amended; but the amendments still authorize each department concerned to refigure contract prices. This means the employment of a vast number of special auditors and accountants.

Congressman Disney points out that there should be an automatic method of screening out contractors from those whose profits are not excessive, "so that we will not have to use, in renegotiation, all of the accountants in the country."

A proposed amendment whittles at the original law and limits renegotiation to contracts which show more than 2 per cent profit. But this is no time for half-way measures. That sort of plan would still require a lot of unnecessary employees on both government and contractors' payrolls.

The Solution

The Internal Revenue department has a yearly check on all profits. It figures the taxes paid in all industries, including those with Army, Navy and Maritime commission contracts. If the Internal Revenue authorities discover an abnormal profit from any war work in any business, after payment of taxes, it could so certify to the department concerned so that renegotiation could be started. The ones that are within the fair and reasonable limit of 2 per cent profit after taxes would require no attention, and in that way millions of man-hours would be saved and duplication of effort, and delays caused by extra forces of employees refiguring contracts, would be avoided.

The Disney amendment, which seems simple and effective, has not yet been adopted. Yet it amply guards against excess profits, with a minimum of interference with wartime production and at the same time providing escape from the new load of non-essential payrollers which the original law threatened.

The ordinary man therefore concludes: Why not let the Internal Revenue tax man do the whole job at one sitting? Why not save the time of industrial management and employees for vital work? Why not use the established check on costs, and at the same time save the expense of extra payrollers?

Most of those payrollers could well be used in the armed service, or on farms, or in factories, or in some other productive kind of work, instead of occupying desks in Washington. They would then be doing something to help win the war.

to mean in the tax burden of the next generation.

Curtail Civic Spending
No one wants to limit a single activity necessary to win the war, but just ordinary common sense and economy indicate that every unnecessary civic expenditure should wait until the emergency of war has passed.

Right now our new Congress is confronted with the problem of preventing excessive profits on war contracts. Present law provides for "renegotiation" of their separate contracts by the Army and Navy departments and the Maritime commission. There are some three million of these contracts, but probably not 5 per cent will show excessive profits after taxation.

The Internal Revenue department will find every case of excessive profits and, where such profits remain after taxes, can report such cases for "renegotiation." This is practical economy and does the job the most efficient way.

Industry and agriculture, both of which feel the pinch of shortage of manpower, should support Congress in any method it decides upon as practical and economical. Preventing new additions to the payrolls and cutting out useless civic expenditures and payrollers who have nothing to do that is constructive in the war effort will help solve the manpower problem and ease the burden of taxes.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 18.

The Golden Text was, "Grace be to you and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ, who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father" (Galatians 1: 3, 4).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hast thou opened; burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required. I delight to do thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart" (Psalms 40: 6, 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Atonement is the exemplification of man's unity with God, whereby man reflects divine Truth, Life, and Love. The atonement of Christ reconciles man to God, not God to man; for the divine Principle of Christ is God, and how can God propitiate Himself? Even Christ cannot reconcile Truth to error, for Truth and error are irreconcilable" (P. 18, 19).

Vegetable Cheese Soup

1/2 cup diced carrots
1/2 cup diced potatoes
1/2 cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
3 cups meat stock
Salt, pepper
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup shredded American cheese

Add the carrots, potatoes, celery, parsley, onion and green pepper to the meat stock. Cover and simmer until the vegetables are tender. Season with salt and pepper. Make a smooth paste with the flour and a small amount of water; add slowly to the soup, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Add the cheese and stir until blended. Serves 4.

IT IS always interesting to get an angle from a top expert. Maj. Robert Tyre Jones, now busy on his job at Mitchel Field with the army flight command, has an angle that is worth considering when it comes to golf.

It concerns the abolition of par—par for any hole or par for any course. "That word par," the major told me, "has done more damage than anything else in any game. It has broken the duffer's or the average golfer's spirit, haunted his dreams and spoiled a good part of his pleasure. It has even tangled up the nerves of the stars. And it really means nothing at all.

"What par means to Byron Nelson, Craig Wood, Ben Hogan or Sam Snead is something entirely different from what it means to the average player, the mass that make up the game.

An Illustration

"Here's an example. The average golfer walks to the first tee, on a 440-yard hole, where he sees par four inscribed on the card. He knows he can't get home in two strokes. He is beaten before he starts. He takes a six and his whole round is spoiled.

"On that same hole Snead, Nelson, Hogan and others are home with a drive and a six or seven iron. On a 500-yard hole, a hard par five for many players, they are home with a drive and an iron.

"The point is that the great mass of golfers are playing against certain fixed figures set for the few stars. These figures are far out of reach, where the 90 per cent are concerned. Yet they keep on battling against impossible situations.

"Did you ever hear of par in football? Or baseball? Or tennis? Or boxing? Bill Tilden never had any par at which to shoot. He was just out to beat his opponent.

The Mental Switch

"Golf," Major Jones continued, "should be a game for fun or recreation and exercise. It should have no other purpose for the millions who play it. The contest should never be against any par, but against your opponent or your opponents. Suppose you take a six on the first hole? What difference does that make if your opponent takes a seven, and you win it?

"Take the case of the 95, or the 100 or the 110 shooters. They face 18 holes, each hole marked its set par. So in the main they are facing 18 objectives that are largely beyond their ability. As a result, they finish with tangled nerves and low morale. They have missed most of the fun which the game should bring them.

"In my opinion, there should be no par figures planted on any hole, or on any score card. This would help to bring about the mental switch needed, to bring more fun back to the game. They could then go out and battle with their opponents, with the wind and the sand, with the rough and the ponds, with no mocking ghosts of par following them around the course."

Craig Wood, Open champion, backs up this viewpoint.

What Is Par?

"What is par, anyway?" Wood asked me. "I've seen Jimmy Thomson get home with a drive and a six iron on a hole 540 yards in length. So far as distance goes, that hole is an easy par four for a Thomson, a Snead or other big hitters. But it is a tough par five for the 90 per cent. Or take that eighth hole at Oakmont. It is around 265 yards, labeled a par three. That's the target the average golfer faces. It doesn't make sense.

"So let's all forget about par, a figure that means nothing to the expert and makes the great majority miserable. Let's bring back the fun and recreation that belong to golf, including the six or seven-mile tramp in the open which older men now need. Let's make it a game of player against player—and not a game against the score card."

To all of which your correspondent subscribes 100 per cent, with the backing of some 2,000,000 or more hackers, who have been harassed by this will-o'-the-wisp from a midnight swamp.

Nothing is more heartbreaking to the average duffer than his battle against a cold, inflexible par. He can't hope to match it—all he can do is play and perhaps swear.

New Prizes

Miami recently came back to join Los Angeles in another type of modern golf.

The first two prizes were a pound of coffee and two pounds of sugar. Big entry list. Why not?

We may have a world series where the winners and losers may split 60-40 for a few barrels of turnips and cabbage. Even spinach.

The main idea is to keep the ball rolling, whatever the prize ahead. Why not put in Whirlaway and Al-sab for a ton of hay?

JAMES J. ("JIMMY") COLLINS, the man who made third base famous, probably will be the next of baseball's immortals to get his pass to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

As happens all too often, the honor will come too late to cheer the great fielder and former manager. He wasn't exactly happy when he missed election by three votes in 1935. He had been under consideration again this year, but he became ill in February. He died in March, not long after talk of his election was revived.

The baseball world was considerably saddened because Jimmy had long nursed the ambition. He deserved the honor. But it takes 75 per cent of the votes of the Baseball Writers' association to get into Cooperstown hall. The fact that it is a select company is proved by the absence so far of such players as Frank Chance and Rube Waddell.

New Standards

Collins, 73 at the time of his death, was manager of the Boston Red Sox when they won the World Series in 1903. Collins was such an outstanding third baseman that he established the standards which exist today. Even today few infielders are compared to Collins, and no third baseman has been named to the Hall of Fame.

Collins—not to be confused with Jimmy "Rip" Collins—was in professional baseball for 18 years, 13 of them in the big leagues. His lifetime batting average was .296 and his lifetime fielding average was .929.

To Collins goes the credit for making third base an important position. Third was just another stop on the way home until Collins changed the picture when he was with the championship Red Sox teams of 1903 and 1904. He made third base the hot corner. He was the first to leave the circle to run in for a bunt. Or he would go back for a pop fly. In 1900 with the Boston Nationals he made 252 putouts in 142 games for a major league third base record.

The Big Switch

Oldtimers still talk about the game which brought Collins in from the outfield to third base, thus launching him on his way to all time greatness.

Collins was then playing with Louisville. The team was playing the Baltimore Orioles. The Orioles were on their toes. They were bunting themselves silly. Walter Preston, the Louisville third baseman, was unable to cope with the situation. He was responsible for four bobbles in a short time. Finally, some unsung genius remarked to Manager John McCloskey of Louisville that Collins was a pretty fair third baseman.

Jimmy was shifted to third and from then on all the bunts of Wee Willie Keeler, John McGraw and the other flashy Orioles went for nothing. Jimmy rushed in to throw them all out.

The first of the moderns to win a place in the Hall of Fame were Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner, Babe Ruth, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson. They were named by the baseball writers in 1936.

The following year the ranks were swelled by such men as Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker and Cy Young.

Newcomers

In 1938 Grover Cleveland Alexander was given the nod, and in 1939, the baseball centennial year, the additions were George Sisler, Eddie Collins and Wee Willie Keeler. Later on Lou Gehrig was named by a special vote after his retirement from Yankee first baseman in 1939.

Rogers Hornsby, fifth in the balloting of 1938-39, was elected to the immortals last year. Hornsby's case demonstrates the difficulty attendant to Hall of Fame election. He was in the big leagues 23 years and had a .358 batting average. It seemed he should have little trouble in being admitted to even that august company. But he had to knock twice before the portals opened.

Technically, the baseball writers vote only on players who have played in this century. But in addition to the modern stars, there is an older group of baseball's pioneers of the 19th century enrolled in the shrine at Cooperstown.

In baseball, as in any other sport, it is the outstanding player who deserves the most credit and glory. Americans always have been willing to honor their sports heroes—and few heroes stand higher in public admiration than those of the baseball diamonds and few heroes are remembered so long.

In making its selections, the Baseball Writers' association has been exceedingly slow and careful. The players have been given the perspective of time.

From that viewpoint, Jimmy Collins qualifies without reservation.

Women in Great Farm Mobilization

Taking Over Jobs Of Fighting Kin

Food is becoming more than ever "woman's business."

In 1943 she not only buys it and prepares it for her family.

She's growing it and harvesting it, as well!

From the Atlantic to the Pacific come reports of a highly successful feminine occupation of the land. Women are handling tractors, driving farm trucks, running combines and other machines, and even riding the range on some of the West's broad grazing acres.

They're taking over the jobs of husbands and brothers in the armed forces, and of the thousands of hired workers also lost to Uncle Sam's army and navy and industrial plants.

Back in the days of World War I women "farmerettes" did their part, too, but agriculture has changed since 1917. Today's farm is a highly mechanized plant, with tractors numbering about 1,800,000 as compared with the 85,000 of 25 years ago. Motor trucks in operation have jumped from around 245,000 to close to 2,000,000. These and many other mechanical aids to the farmer require trained operators and repairmen, even though they are releasing a lot of manpower.

Milking three times a day will help meet '43 goals.

Women are being prepared for both jobs, and thousands are already busy keeping the farm machinery rolling. Vocational agriculture classes in the schools and instruction offered by farm implement companies have both contributed to providing skilled feminine mechanics.

Colleges and universities, as well as high schools, are giving courses in agriculture for the girls. To increase their interest in farm work, the University of California at Los Angeles has instituted a series of farm festivals.

Manpower experts estimate that 70 per cent more women were doing farm work in 1942 than in 1940.

Good Care Assures

More Young Lambs

Saving a high percentage of the new lamb crop and getting them ready for an early market is one of the important wartime jobs of the American farmer, according to Dale C. Snodgrass, animal husbandry extension specialist of North Carolina State college.

By following a few simple, well-established practices, the sheepman can be sure of success with his young animals. Snodgrass lists some of these practices as follows:

Have the ewes in a good, strong, thrifty condition before lambing, and be sure that the flock is securely separated from other stock, especially hogs.

Do not disturb a ewe at lambing time, unless she needs help, but be sure to stay on the job. Carelessness may mean the loss of a lamb. See that the young lamb nurses and does not become chilled. Should the ewe disown her lamb, try to get her to claim it.

Gradually increase the feed given to the ewe after the lamb is about one week old to stimulate the flow of milk. During lambing time, the ewe should be housed at night and during bad weather.

If a new-born lamb becomes chilled, take it to a warm room and put it in warm water up to its neck. After the young animal is warm, take it out of the water and dry it thoroughly before placing it with the ewe in a warm dry place.

Conserving Fuel

It is clear that farmers have a vital stake in the conservation of gasoline and fuel oil. If supplies run too low, not only will production and distribution of essential food and fiber be hindered, but the ability of many farmers to continue operation will be endangered.

Farmers can be assured the amounts of gasoline and fuel oil which they actually need for productive uses and heating. Any uses beyond these must be eliminated.

All-Bran Buttermilk Biscuits

1/2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran 1/2 cup buttermilk 1/2 cup flour 1/2 cup shortening 1 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon soda

Soak All-Bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn-meal. Add soaked All-Bran; stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board; knead lightly a few seconds, roll or pat to 1/4 inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Bake on lightly greased pan in hot oven (450° F.) about 12 minutes.

NOTE: Sweet Milk Recipe: If sweet milk is used instead of buttermilk, omit soda and increase baking powder to 3 teaspoons.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A single 10-ton ponton bridge cuts up 3200 pounds of rubber and 2,01 pounds are used for each roll of adhesive plaster made for the Army's medical corps.

We've heard a lot about tire switching lately, but the practice would become more common if every driver realized that equalizing wear on all tires can increase tread mileage as much as 50%.

With conservation in mind keep your rubber goods in a cool, dark place, preferably away from direct heat, or exposure to sunlight, oil and grease.

To make the bullet-sealing gasoline tanks of a Flying Fortress requires 1600 pounds of rubber.

Parthenium Argentum is what botanists call Guayule (pronounced Yoo-Lee) a scrubby desert shrub of Central America and Southwest U. S. which is being developed for its rubber content.

Where Will Money Come From?

People ask: "Where will the money come from?" to reach the thirteen-billion dollar objective of the Second War Loan. The answer is simple. The people HAVE the income. When we produce munitions or peacetime goods, or anything else, we likewise produce income. For every dollar of production, there is a dollar of income.

The problem of war finance boils down to this—if individuals and businesses receive more income after taxes than there are things produced for them to buy, then excess funds arise. The government deficit is matched by the combined surplus of everybody else. This surplus should be put into Government securities to wipe out that deficit.

Raise a VICTORY GARDEN

Eat What You NEED— and Stock Up for Winter!

• A food shortage in the U. S. A.?

It won't happen here if we all grow Victory Gardens. It takes a lot of hard work to have a good garden, but you will be rewarded with fresh vegetables on your table all summer—and a supply of canned goods on the pantry shelves next winter.

Grow the vegetables you won't be able to buy at the corner grocery. Plan a garden of your own or join up with your friends. Everybody will be gardening. If you had a Victory Garden last year, have a bigger one this year. And be sure to ask us about International Harvester's 84-page booklet, "Have a Victory Garden." It's a honey!

Come in and ask us about International's 84-Page Booklet, "Have A Victory Garden."
